Ryder to Sponsor Integrated Delivery Network Summit and Reverse Expo

9/14/2015

MIAMI--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Ryder System, Inc. (NYSE: R), a leader in commercial fleet management, dedicated transportation, and supply chain solutions, today announced that it will be a sponsor of the Integrated Delivery Network (IDN) Summit and Reverse Expo, which will be held at the Arizona Biltmore in Phoenix, Ariz. from September 21-23. Additionally, Ryder executives Keli Parker and Chris DiBernardi will present at the Summit's Lunch-N-Learn educational forum on Monday, September 21.

Keli Parker, Ryder Global Director of Product Development, and Chris DiBernardi, Director of Product Development for Ryder's healthcare industry group, will speak about inventory management's ability to transform the supply chain. They will share metrics and case study examples that show how focusing on inventory management can lead to reduced costs and a healthier supply chain.

The IDN Summit provides the most efficient and effective venue for networking opportunities, meetings, and idea exchange among all sectors of the supply chain. It also offers a unique forum for senior healthcare executives to network with and engage their peers on issues that challenge today's healthcare systems.

In an ever-changing healthcare industry, Ryder helps meet rigorous standards for patient outcomes and delivers services in a complex environment. As a supply chain partner with a broad portfolio of customized services, Ryder provides FDA compliant, temperature-controlled warehousing, distribution, and transportation management solutions, along with specialized trucks, equipment, supply chain optimization, and manufacturing support. Ryder also offers lower total costs to serve and align with better patient care.
