MIAMI--(BUSINESS WIRE)-- Ryder System, Inc. (NYSE: R), a leader in commercial fleet management, dedicated transportation, and supply chain solutions, today announced its new partnership with TECSYS, an industry-leading supply chain management software company.

Ryder's top-level supply chain solutions paired with TECSYS' best-in-class technology will address the growing end-to-end supply chain challenges facing those in the health systems market. By creating a closed-loop system between suppliers, manufacturers, healthcare systems, and patients, Ryder's full-suite of services help reduce inventory levels, increase order accuracy, and improve order cycle times, resulting in lower costs while improving speed-to-patient.

"We are committed to providing innovative technology and solutions to our customers, and our partnership with TECSYS is a great way of delivering on that promise," said Norm Brouillette, Supply Chain Solutions Vice President and General Manager, Ryder. "The healthcare industry is one with some of the most time-sensitive needs, which is why it's so important to work with a supply chain management software company like TECSYS that can ensure patients' needs are always met."

TECSYS' health system-specific software solutions ensure that health systems operate a transparent, efficient, and optimized supply chain network, through to point-of-care. Clinicians are able to dedicate their time to patient care, while TECSYS' behind-the-scenes solutions ensure efficient and on-time delivery of supplies for patient-centric care.

"Ryder brings a high level of expertise and extensive execution abilities in the overall supply chain management industry specifically in healthcare," said Peter Brereton, President and CEO, TECSYS.
